

CHAPTER: FOREIGN POLICY OF PAKISTAN

States are bound to maintain, restore, and develop relations with other states, Foreign Policies drafted to keep on their relations, the principles and objectives of states are mentioned below:

Lord Palmer Stone:

“In International relations there are no permanent friend no permanent enemy, but the national interest remains permanent”.

Principles of Foreign Policy

Peaceful Co-Existence

Pakistan believes in peaceful co-existence and respects the liberty, freedom and sovereignty of others, and expects the same from others. Pakistan doesn't interfere in others internal affairs of other states.

Non-Alignment

Pakistan has adopted the policy of non-alignments by making changes in foreign policy. In 1954 and 1955 Pakistan had signed SEATS and CENTO but in 1979, Pakistan became member of non-alignment movement.

United Nations Charter

Pakistan is a member of United Nations and follows its charter strictly, Pakistan has supported every action of the United Nations and provided military assistance to implement its decision.

Nuclear Non-Proliferation

Pakistan is the supporter of Nuclear free world and had suggested for the De-Weaponisation of South Asia, but India didn't shown positive response.

Islamic World

Pakistan maintains good relations with the Muslim countries and admirer of unity of Islamic world. Pakistan is the member of OIC.

International and Regional Cooperation

Pakistan is the active member of UN, NAM, OIC, SAARC, and SCO. Engagement of Pakistan at regional and international levels reveal that Pakistan believe in cooperation, and coordination with countries, Pakistan has participated in UN military operation for peace and stability.

Phases of Foreign Policy of Pakistan

Pakistan's foreign Policy is divided into six phases.

1. Era of Neutrality (1947-53)
2. Era of Alliances (1954-62)
3. Era of Bilateralism (1963-78)
4. Era of Non-Alignment (1979-89)
5. Era of Post-Cold-War (1990-2001)
6. Era of Global Antiterrorism (2001- till present)

Era of Neutrality (1947-53)

Pakistan was newly born country, it could not alliance with Russia and America because of Kashmir and water issue were deteriorating its economic conditions. Afghanistan refused to accept Pakistan as an independent country and demanded Pakhtunistan within Pakistan. Russia and US were forcing Pakistan to join alliances but it remained and didn't join any alliance in this period.

Era of Alliances (1954-62)

During this phase Pakistan was passing through economic crisis and looking for foreign aid in the form of grant, loan or alliances. US was looking for Pakistan to gain support against communist influence which was spreading in the South Asia. This Pakistan signed SEATO 1954, CENTO 1955 and in 1959 Pakistan signed defense pact with US against any attack from the communist bloc. Pakistan gained aid from US and tried to modernize and equip its military with modern weapons.

Era of Bilateralism (1963-78)

Bilateralism is the conduct of Political, economic or cultural relations between two sovereign states, bilateralism is very oppose to unilateralism and multilateralism. During this period Pakistan quit dependency on the western alliance system and develops close relations with China to muster support against India. Pakistan had signed CENTO and SEATO for support, but US didn't supported with military equipment to Pakistan during Indo-Pakistan war 1965. Pakistan responded to Russian friendship offer, Russia played vital role in arranging Tashkent Agreement. Pakistan restored relations with Arab countries and condemned Arab Israel war of 1967. In 1968 Pakistan relations with Arab countries resulted setting up of O.I.C on Sept 25, 1969, and subsequently inviting its session at Lahore in 1974.

Era of Non-Alignment (1979-89)

Pakistan had fed up from alliances in 1979 Iran left the CENTO and immediately Pakistan also withdrew from it, because the pacts had lost their gravity. The path was clear for Pakistan to join Non-Alignment Movement at the Havana summit of September 1979 Pakistan joined NAM because of certain reason, i.e., Pakistan's nuclear programme but Russian invasion of Afghanistan forced U.S to reorient its relations with Pakistan.

Era of Post-Cold-War (1990-2001)

Cold war against Russian ended in 1991, Soviet disunion resulted in the emergence of 15 sovereign state (6 Muslims, 9 non-Muslims)

Pakistan tested its nuclear which disturbed the balance of power. Pakistan was pressurized to rollback its nuclear programme, US suspended military aid to Pakistan. U.S imposed sanctions on Pakistan through Pressler Amendments. Same year the intensification of the freedom movement in occupied Kashmir led to the massive developments in India troops in occupied Kashmir.

Era of Global Antiterrorism (2001- till present)

An episode of 9/11 changed the policy of Pakistan, it forced her to discard Taliban, discard Islamic Jihad and became partner in the American military intervention in Afghanistan. Pakistan joint this international coalition against the war on terrorism. U.S removed Taliban government and installed government under Karzai. In 2003 U.S and Britain forces invaded Afghanistan and dissolved Saddam's government, Pakistan has lost life and property in this war against terrorism.

Introduction to International Organizations.

NAM: Non-Alignment Movement

Non-Alignment is a political states, in which state doesn't join any alliances or set free from military pacts, thus state avoid taking part in cold wars and doesn't allow its territory to be used as military basis of super powers, after second world war many African and Asian countries got independence they were facing a challenge of alignment with one or other bloc to solve this problem and preserve their identity. Leaders of Indonesia, Sri Lanka, Egypt and Yugoslavia gathered in Sri Lanka. They decided upon not to take part in any of the blocs but to remain non-aligned thus it resulted in setting up of NAM on 24 April, 1955 at Bandung (Indonesia) Conference, Pakistan had aligned with US under SEATO and CENTO in 1954 and 1955 later on in 1972(SEATO) and in 1979(CENTO) left the aligned accords and joined NAM in 6th summit at Havana Conference on 30 September 1979. NAM set up in 1961, member states doesn't make a military alliance with other states. It support independence of nations. Pakistan joined NAM in 1979 at Havana summit, because initially Pakistan was member of SEATO and CENTO, an American Alliance to push back communist influence from South Asia. NAM members avoid multilateral military agreements and alliances especially against any Great Power in favor of another Great Power. Bilateral military agreements are allowed with a great power or with a state.

OIC: ORGANIZATION OF ISALMIC CONFERENCE:

The Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC) is an inter-governmental organization grouping fifty-six States. These States decided to pool their resources together, combine their efforts and speak with one voice to safeguard the interest and ensure the progress and well-being of their peoples and those of other Muslims in the world over. The Organization was established in Rabat, Kingdom of Morocco, on 12 Rajab 1389H (25 September 1969) when the First meeting of the leaders of the Islamic world was held in this city in the wake of the criminal arson perpetrated on 21 August 1969 by Zionist elements against Al-Aqsa Mosque, in occupied Jerusalem. It was indeed in order to defend the honour, dignity and faith of the Muslims, to face this bitter challenge launched in the holy city of Al-Quds so dear to them and against the Mosque of Al-Aqsa, the first Qibla and third holiest Shrine of Islam, that the leaders of the Muslim world, at their Summit in Rabat, seized that event - which brought about unanimous worldwide condemnation and reprobation - to think together of their common cause and muster the force required to overcome their differences, unite and lay the foundations of this large grouping of States, that is, the Organization of the Islamic Conference which they entrusted, in absolute priority, with liberating Jerusalem and Al-Aqsa from Zionist occupation.

Six months after that historical meeting, i.e. in Muharram 1390H (March 1970), the First Islamic Conference of Ministers of Foreign Affairs held in Jeddah set up a permanent General Secretariat, to ensure a liaison among Member States and charged it to coordinate their action. The Conference appointed its Secretary General and chose Jeddah as the Headquarters of the Organization, pending the liberation of Jerusalem, which would be the permanent Headquarters.

The Second Islamic Summit Conference held from February 22-24, 1974 in Lahore was hosted by Pakistan and came to be known as the Lahore Summit. It was an extra ordinary summit that was held on the proposal of OIC Secretary General Tunku Abdul Rahman.

After Rabat, in Muharram 1401H (Jan 25, 1981), the Islamic Conference of Foreign Ministers, meeting in its Third Session, adopted the Charter of the Organization, whose purpose is to strengthen solidarity and cooperation among Islamic States in the political, economic, cultural, scientific and social fields.

SAARC: South Asian Association for Regional Cooperation

Seven States of South Asia, i.e. India, Pakistan, Sri Lanka, Maldives, Bhutan, Nepal, Bangladesh were already engage in international organizations such UN, NAM and common wealth, but there was need for organization at regional level. The idea for such a regional organization was put forward by Zia-ur-Rehman President of Bangladesh, he sent letters to above states of South Asian government held on 7-8 December 1985 at Dhaka in which SAARC was set up, its first head was president of Bangladesh Hussain Mohammad Ershad.

ECO: Economic Cooperation Organization

ECO is the new name to RCD, it stands for Regional Cooperation Development set up in 1964. Three Muslim countries, namely Pakistan, Iran Turkey established it for cooperation in economic affairs. It is trilateral agreement between above mentioned three states. Name RCD was replaced in 1979 with Economic Cooperation Organization.

Pakistan's Relations with Neighbouring Countries

Pakistan is the second largest Muslim country in terms of population (after Indonesia), and its status as a declared nuclear power, being the only Islamic nation to have that status, plays a part in its international role. Pakistan is also an important member of the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC)

Pakistan is an active member of the United Nations. Historically, its foreign policy has encompassed difficult relations with the Republic of India; especially on the core-issue of Kashmir, over which it has fought two wars. However it has had long-standing close relations with its other neighbors Afghanistan, Iran and China, extensive security and economic interests in the Persian Gulf and wide-ranging bilateral relations with the United States and other western Countries

Wary of Soviet expansion, Pakistan had strong relations with both the United States of America and the People's Republic of China during much of the Cold War. Today, the two countries remain Pakistan's closest allies.

It was a member of the CENTO and SEATO military alliances. Its alliance with the United States was especially close after the Soviets invaded the neighboring country of Afghanistan. In 1964, Pakistan signed the Regional Cooperation for Development (RCD) Pact with Turkey and Iran, when all three countries were closely allied with the U.S., and as neighbors of the Soviet Union, wary of perceived Soviet expansionism. To this day, Pakistan has a close relationship with Turkey. RCD became defunct after the Iranian Revolution, and a Pakistani-Turkish initiative led to the founding of the Economic Cooperation Organization (ECO) in 1985. For several years prior to the staged November 2008 Mumbai attacks, Pakistan's relations with India had been gradually improving, which opened up Pakistan's foreign policy to issues beyond security. An increasingly important actor on the world scene, Pakistan formed the "Friend of Pakistan" group which includes important countries such as Australia, Britain, Canada, China, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Saudi Arabia, Turkey, the United Arab Emirates, the United States, the United Nations and European Union

Afghanistan

Pakistan shares a long and porous border with Afghanistan (also called the Durand Line). The border is poorly marked. The problem is exacerbated by cultural, historical, linguistic, ethnic and political ties crossing close relations between peoples who live on both sides of the border. This is further complicated by the fact that many of the Pashtun tribes on both sides of the border are often married and refuse to recognize it much to the frustration of both the Afghan government and the Pakistani government.

Following the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan in 1979, the Pakistani Government played a vital role in supporting the Afghan resistance and assisting refugees. Social and health indicators dropped considerably during this period as Polio and Tuberculosis, previously eradicated from the country, were re-introduced and the country became awash with drugs, weapons, prostitution rings and increased incidences of crime and violence. After the Soviet withdrawal in February 1989, Pakistan, with cooperation from the world community, continued to provide extensive support for displaced Afghans. In 1999, the United States provided approximately $70 million in humanitarian assistance to Afghanistan and Afghan refugees in Pakistan, mainly through multilateral organizations and NGOs.

Pakistani strategists view Afghanistan in a fraternal matter and vice versa, despite the support of anti-Pakistani elements in recent history; this has led Pakistani analysts to hope that Afghanistan could provide "strategic depth" in the event of a war with neighboring India. For this reason Pakistan strives to have friendly relations with Afghanistan. Furthermore, many Pakistanis saw in Afghanistan and Afghans a common bond based on religion, history, culture, language and ethnic ties. At various times, Pakistan has backed the mujahedeen factions as suited its interests, against its perceived enemies.

In the 1950s, there were suggestions of a possible formation of a confederation between Afghanistan and Pakistan, a move supported by Zahir Shah, the Afghan king along the lines of the original Afghan Empire founded by Ahmed Shah Abdali. Many Afghans and Pakistanis want to see improved relations which they feel are a necessity for both countries to fulfill their destiny, often what one country lacks, the other has an excess of.
