"I am going to meet the Arabs in the open battle, and fight them as best as I can. If I crush them, my kingdom will then be put on a firm footing. But if I am killed honourably, the event will be recorded in the books of Arabia and India, and will be talked about by great men. It will be heard by other kings in the world, and it will be said that sacrificed his precious life for the sake of his country, in fighting with the enemy."

My ruling is given: Kill anyone belonging to the ahl-i- harb (combatants); arrest their sons and daughters for hostages and imprison them. Whoever does not fight against us...grant them aman (safety) and settle their tribute [amwal] as dhimmah (protected person)...

The background is a detailed historical painting of a harbor scene, likely representing the East India Company's operations. On the left, the ornate, gilded prow of a large sailing ship is visible. In the center, the harbor is filled with water, with several smaller sailing ships and a gondola with people in the foreground. In the background, a city with a prominent green-domed building, possibly St. Peter's Basilica, is visible under a cloudy sky. The text "EAST INDIA COMPANY" is superimposed in the center in a stylized, black, serif font with decorative flourishes.
